H63 2006d OCLC Number: (OCoLC)75264430 Excerpt: . . . 11 Yet our Committee has found over the years that the GSA has not been as aggressive in taking action against contractors that lack integrity in order to protect the taxpayer. For example, we found that it was only after the Office of Management and Budget referred the matter to GSA that GSA acted to prevent Andersen Accounting, the old Arthur Andersen, and Enron from receiving government contracts. What will you do to ensure that GSA aggressively protects the integrity of the procurement system by taking action against dishonest contractors OAN Ms. D. It is actually quite simple. The FAR already has it written in there what GSA has to do. It simply says that you are not allowed to award contracts to contractors who have not performed well or corresponded to all of the rules and requirements of any kind of procurement. So if you look at that, it is a very simple thing. If it is the law, and it is, that you pay your taxes, if it is the law that if you are suspended or debarred you are not allowed to be awarded another contract, then that is exactly, if I am confirmed, what GSA will do. We will enforce that law. I think it is important that GSA lead by example. I think, as the premier government agency in procurement, I think we have an important responsibility to take on that leadership position. And I actually think it is a very simple database...
