Excerpt: .Sad it was, and calm as the twilit sky above, The church to which we came; The unwatch d altar, like a heart bereft of love, Had lost its tapers flame. Your brow in clasping hands is bended lowly down, Like the rain-smitten grass, While, in the far distance, from the gay, noisy town Numberless voices pass. And the passing voices sing blithely and cheerily, Now is the time for joy, For us the gold cups brim with red wine merrily, Tho others lips they cloy. Let us love and be happy, for springtime is dying, The urn 1s quickly fill d. Snatch at the sunny hours and seize them while they re flying, Ere merry lips bse still d. 7 Let us take from each object the best of its dower, Take soft warmth from the fire, Wine from the ripen d grape,...
