SYSTEM AND PRECISION IN DENTAL OPERATIONS. H. E. Friesell, D. D. S. Head before the Alumni Association of the University of Buffalo, February 20, 1906. The crying evil of the dental profession seems, to the writer, to be a lack of system and order. Many of the secondary evils can be attributed to this cause. This is clearly discernible on every side. Our lack of organization as a profession; the time that is wasted in our society meetings; our notorious weakness in business matters (which weakness is by no means lessened because other professions share it with us); the lack of harmony in the curricula of our various teaching faculties; the preponderance of time given to the teaching of subjects...
